

First and foremost, I love the toc option you included in your global options. Once our documents get longer navigating your html should be really easy. Everything looks great when it comes to your formatting. You used spaces everywhere you were suppose to, and indented lines for each argument to make it an easy read. I had no trouble discovering the purpose of your code because of that, so thank you! Also I never knew you could use r code in a paragraph to give the result of a function etc. That translate well over into the html and helps correlated the code to your responses. My only critique would be that your graphs aren't showing up for me, but that may be because I didn't render the file on my own computer. Keep doing what you're doing.

Scott Fraser Brydon , Oct 17 at 3:52pm